

ANNEX A — EVIDENCE OF PUBLIC INDEXING (CONSTRUCTIVE NOTICE ONLY)

Case: ANUHCV2025/0149

Court: Eastern Caribbean Supreme Court – High Court of Justice, Antigua & Barbuda

Limitation of Use

Annex A is filed solely to demonstrate public indexing, accessibility, and discoverability of these proceedings for the purpose of constructive notice. No reliance is placed on headlines, imagery, commentary, opinion, or predictions contained in any publication. The Claimant does not invite the Court to adopt, endorse, or consider any editorial content and relies only on the fact of public availability and indexing as of the stated dates.

This annex is tendered for procedural purposes only and is not relied upon as argument or proof of any pleaded fact.

DATED: 04 February 2026

/s/ Alkiviades David

ALKIVIADES DAVID

Claimant – Litigant in Person

Digitally signed pursuant to disability accommodation

PUBLICATION HEADER (MINIMAL IDENTIFIERS ONLY)

Antigua Files: UPP Party in Procedural Default as Contempt Notices Enter the Record and Jurisdiction Crystallizes in ECSC Case ANUHCV2025/0149 – Risk Analysis

By Alki David

Published: 03 February 2026

United Progressive Party officers face an alleged contempt filing; Attorney General's amicus submissions come under scrutiny as the Eastern Caribbean Supreme Court assesses jurisdictional finality.

NEUTRAL SUMMARY (NOTICE PURPOSE ONLY)

In Claim No. ANUHCV2025/0149 before the Eastern Caribbean Supreme Court, a set of public-interest filings referred to as the "Antigua Files" were published and indexed. The publication reports on the filing of a Notice of Contempt and a Notice of Factual Clarification, and states that questions of service, defaults, and jurisdiction have been raised for the Court's determination.

PUBLIC INDEXING AND DISCOVERABILITY

On 03 February 2026, an ordinary Google search using the term "UPP" displayed the above publication within the first page of results. This demonstrates that information concerning these proceedings was publicly indexed, readily discoverable, and reasonably capable of being located through ordinary diligence.