By Grady Owen

SEP 22, 2024

Gloria Allred and her daughter, Lisa Bloom, have built their careers under the guise of fighting for victims, but the truth reveals something far darker: they are key players in a corrupt legal network often referred to as SCAM INC. This syndicate, led by Tom Girardi and his cronies, has long manipulated the legal system to serve the rich, the powerful, and the untouchable—all while presenting a false front of advocacy for victims. Allred and Bloom have been instrumental in this operation, betraying their clients while lining their own pockets.

A Journalist or Just Another Fixer?

Khadeeja Safdar's recent article in the Wall Street Journal, targeting me (Alki David) under the pretext of payouts to Lisa Bloom and the Elizabeth Taylor Estate, is not just lazy journalism—it is weaponized misinformation.

This article, like much of her work, brings nothing new to the table. It's regurgitated garbage, a warmed-over stew of old press releases and court gossip, published to distract from a collapsing network of media, legal, and entertainment elites now named in courtrooms across the world.

Gloria Allred Reportedly Nearing Death: Allred Faces Final Days Amidst Legacy of High-Profile Cases, Controversial Alliances, and International Scandals

By shockyapush

NOV 11, 2024

Gloria Allred, the celebrated and controversial attorney known for her aggressive advocacy in high-profile cases, is reportedly nearing the end of her life. Throughout her career, Allred built a reputation as one of the most controversial figures in American law, taking on cases that often became media sensations. Known for her affiliations with notorious figures such as Michael Avenatti, Tom Girardi, and Hollywood investigator Anthony Pellicano, Allred's career saw her operate at the intersection of justice, celebrity, and, at times, infamy.

Among her most notable pursuits was her aggressive interest in the vast wealth of pop icon Michael Jackson, where her efforts brought her into contact with the Cascio brothers—Jackson's close associates, with rumored connections to organized crime. Her pursuit of Jackson's estate stirred up significant backlash, with guardians of his legacy standing firmly in her way.

Allred's final days are not without international complications. She was recently summoned by an Italian court in connection with Matteo Messina Denaro, the infamous Sicilian Mafia boss known as "Diabolik," who was captured last year after decades in hiding. She also faces allegations of "double dipping" in fraudulent settlements in Athens, and her work has recently sparked notable resistance from the British royal household in London, illustrating the wide reach of her contentious career.

In an unexpected twist, Allred's farewell is being organized by her longtime critic Alki David, who has prepared an unconventional send-off for the attorney. In a final gesture that underscores their strained relationship, Allred's daughter, attorney Lisa Bloom, is reportedly not invited to attend. David's farewell event will reportedly allow attendees to "pay their respects" in his characteristic irreverent style, with guests such as former private investigator Anthony Pellicano anticipated to be present. Both Michael Avenatti and Tom Girardi, disgraced and now imprisoned, have been connected to the guest list, adding further irony to her final farewell. President Donald Trump, one of her most public adversaries, has also reportedly been invited to deliver the eulogy, making Allred's departure as headline-worthy as the career she led.

As Gloria Allred approaches the end of her life, her legacy remains as complex as the cases she took on, defined by high-stakes advocacy, notable controversies, and strained relationships—even within her own family. Her impact on the legal world, as polarizing as it was significant, will continue to spark debate for years to come.

OPEN LETTER TO DAVID BOIES — YOU ARE EXPOSED

By Grady Owen
MAR 30, 2025

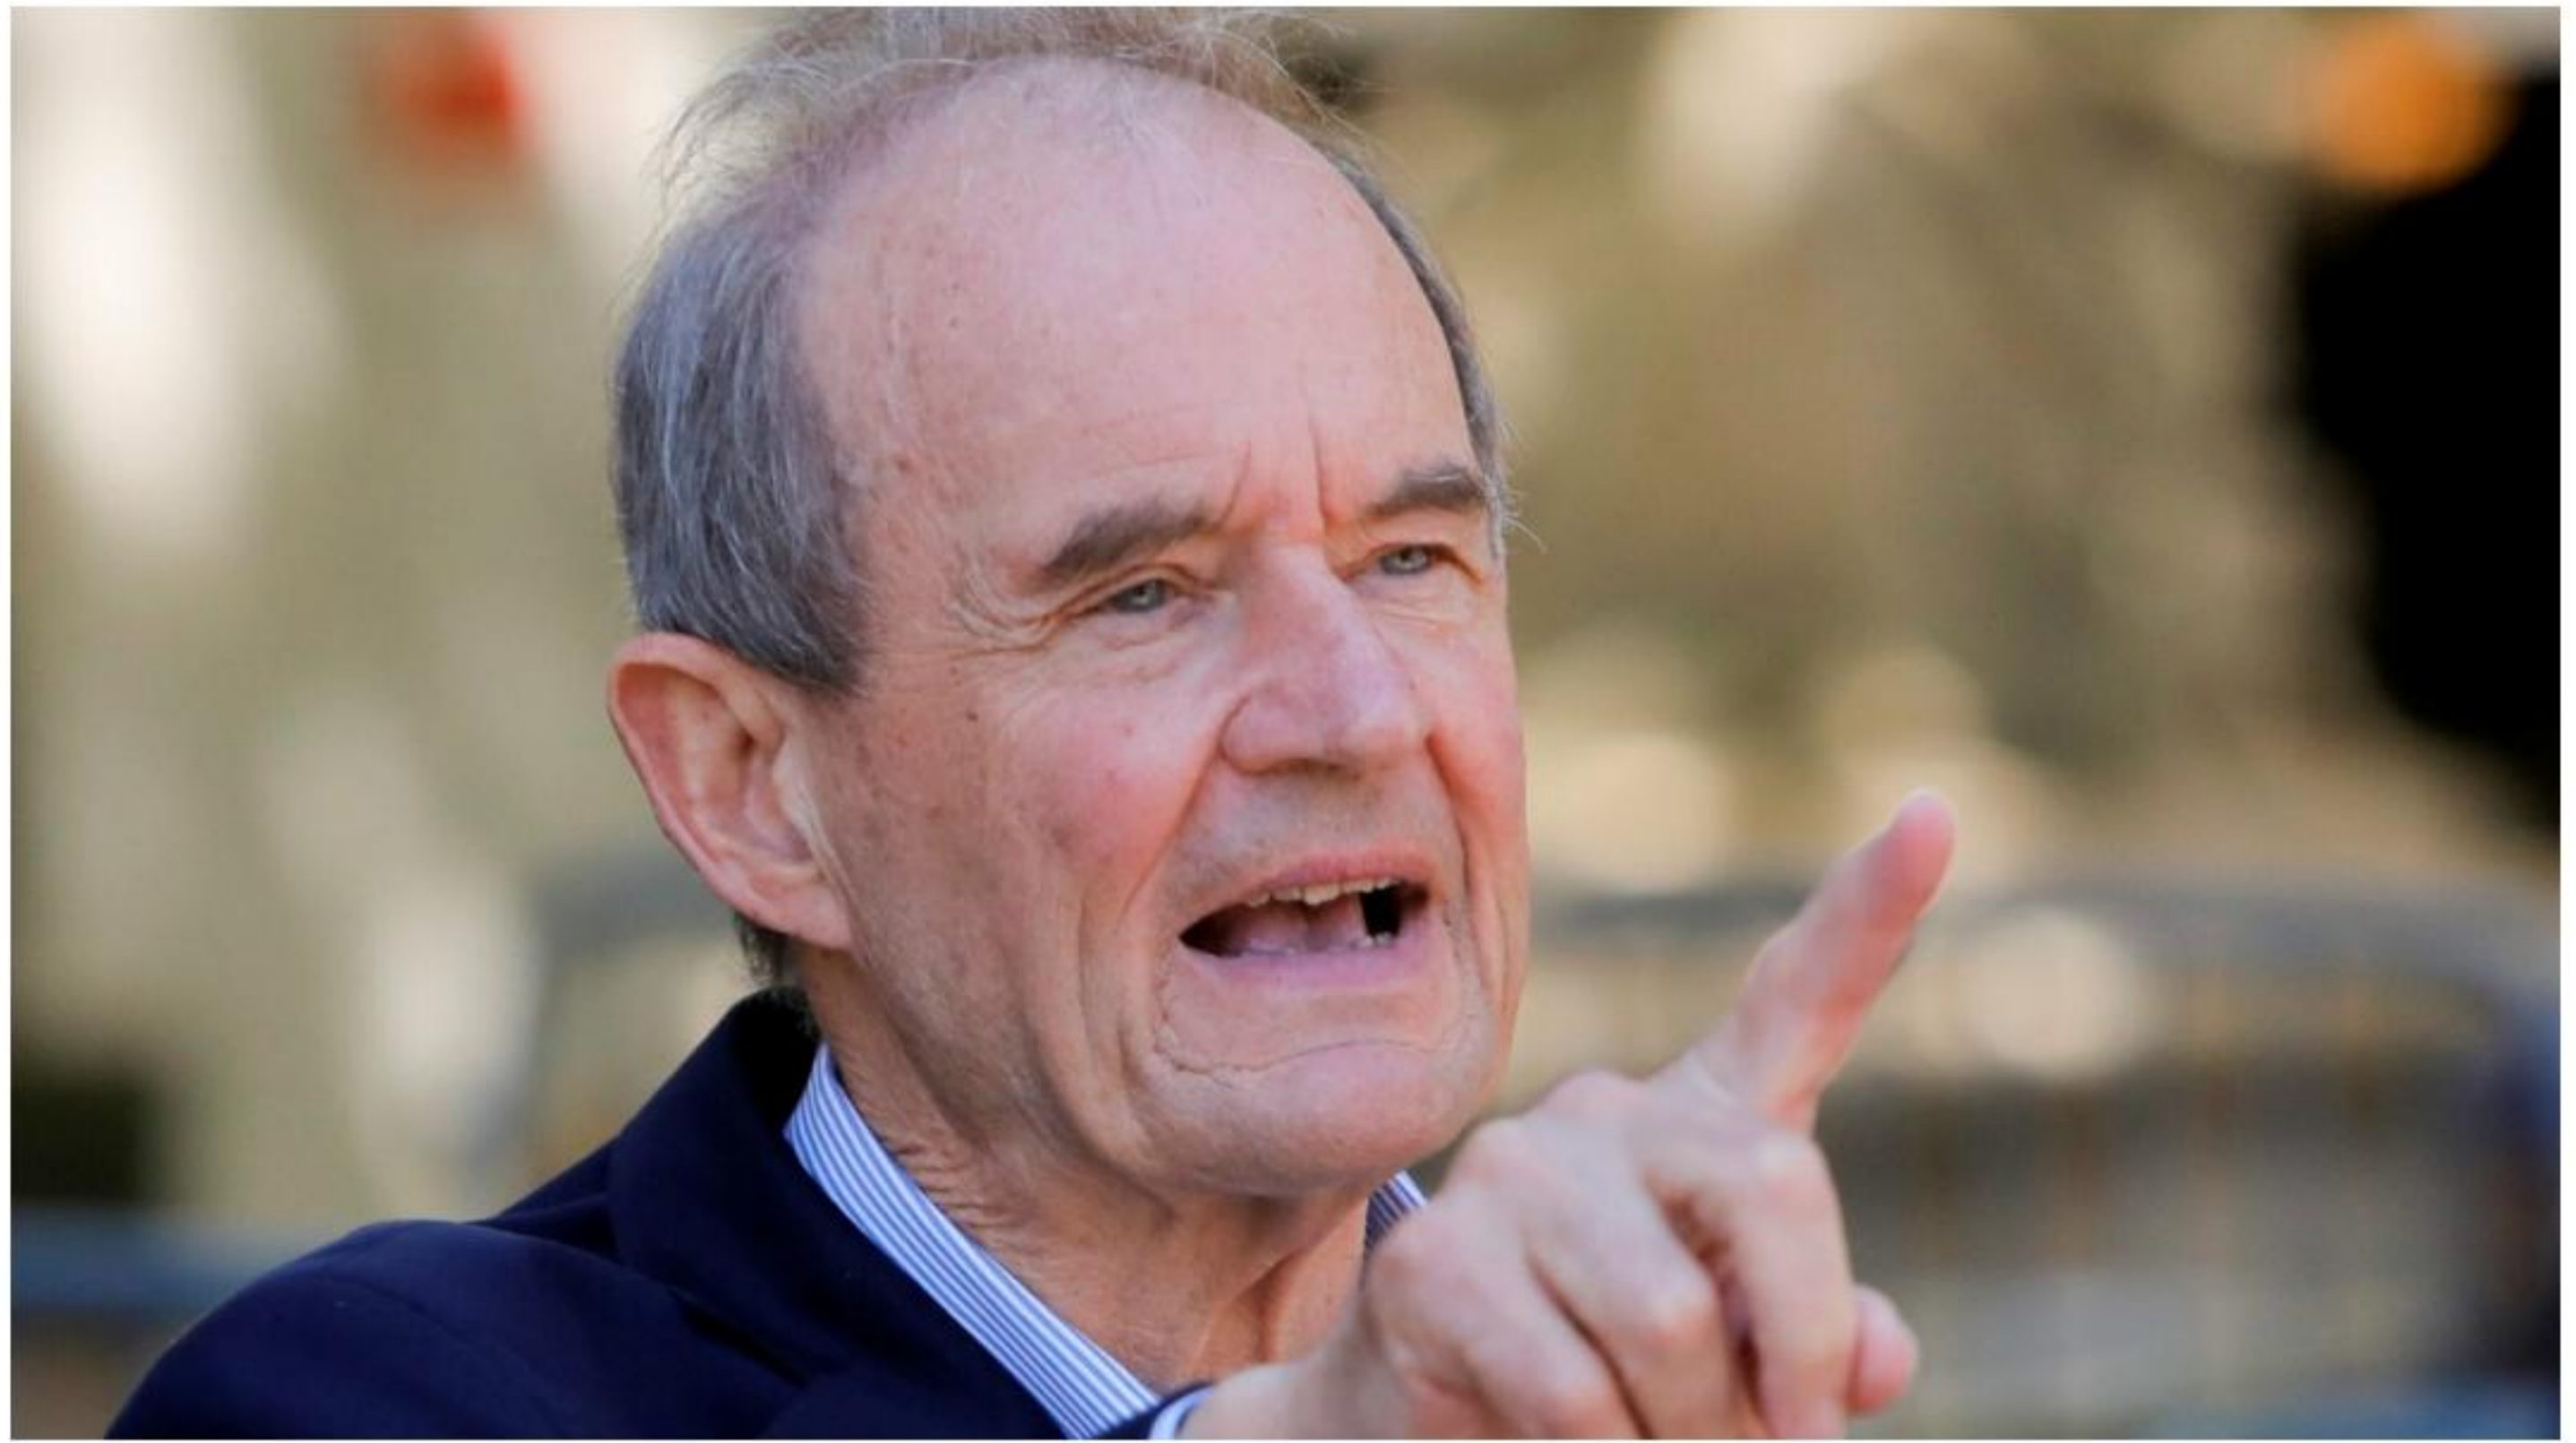

By Alki David | March 2025

Mr. Boies,

This letter isn't a negotiation. It's a reckoning. You know my name. You've spent millions trying to erase it. You failed. Now the world will know yours—not as a lawyer, but as a trafficker in truth, a manipulator of courts, a protector of predators.

You sat behind the scenes of the most grotesque legal atrocities of our time. You defended Harvey Weinstein. You made calls for Jeffrey Epstein. You helped Gloria Allred and Lisa Bloom plant false testimony against Michael Jackson. And you tried to destroy me—because you were afraid I would expose it.

Let's get specific.

David Boies now 85

You orchestrated a war against Michael Jackson. You weren't alone. You brought in Gloria Allred, Anthony Pellicano, Tom Girardi, Barry K. Rothman, Gary Dordick, Michael Avenatti, Lisa Bloom, Nathan Goldberg, and a full suite of operatives—Daphne Barak, Ernie Günasti, John Branca, John McClain, and Jack Palladino—to dismantle the man, steal the catalog, and silence everyone who knew the truth.

The Lawsuit: Blackmail Alleged

According to the lawsuit, Joseph Sherman claims he had stopped working for Combs in 1999, and was not around him in 2001 when Thalia Graves alleges he and Combs raped her. In fact, Sherman claims that he has never even met Graves. The suit goes on to detail how Graves seemingly attempted to blackmail him into providing false testimony against Sean Combs; "if you will be my witness against Diddy, then my attorneys will leave you out of any proceedings. ... I will make sure the state does not pick up charges or rape charges against you."

Pellicano's Role: A Fixer in the Shadows

Anthony Pellicano Served 17 Years

At the heart of this unfolding scandal is Anthony Pellicano, the infamous Hollywood private investigator, notorious for illegal wiretapping, blackmail, and intimidation. Pellicano is alleged to have orchestrated a private gathering during the 2000 DNC, which quickly turned into a nightmare for young Michael Jackson supporters from the LA Unified School District. According to witnesses, including Corey Feldman and members of Michael Jackson's family, these teenagers were beaten and sexually abused as part of a twisted agenda overseen by Hollywood insiders and political elites.
