

CALIFORNIA

L.A. jury orders Alki David to pay $900 million in sexual assault suit

Hollywood executive Alki David, photographed at his home in Malibu in 2019, is best known for operating a hologram company that projects images of dead celebrities. (Carolyn Cole / Los Angeles Times)

By Noah Goldberg

Staff Writer | Follow

June 19, 2024 2:05 PM PT

A Los Angeles jury on Monday awarded a woman \$900 million in damages in her sexual assault case against the heir to a Coca-Cola bottling fortune, her attorney announced.

The woman, who was identified as a Jane Doe in her lawsuit against Alkiviades “Alki” David, alleged she was harassed and raped over a three-year period from 2016 to 2019, according to her attorney.

“It’s so despicable, the facts of this case. He raped my client while on trial in another case,” said her attorney, Gary Dordick.

Subscribe to Continue Reading

Sign up for Essential California

The most important California stories and recommendations in your inbox every morning.

By continuing, you agree to our Terms of Service, which include arbitration and a class action waiver. You agree that we and our third-party vendors may collect and use your information, including through cookies, pixels and similar technologies, for the purposes set forth in our Privacy Policy such as personalizing your experience and ads.

Login or register with email

Agree & Continue

Noah Goldberg

Noah Goldberg covers Los Angeles City Hall for the Los Angeles Times. He previously worked on its breaking news team and has also written an array of offbeat enterprise stories. Before joining The Times in 2022, Goldberg worked in New York City as the Brooklyn courts reporter for the New York Daily News and as the criminal justice reporter for the Brooklyn Eagle. He graduated from Vassar College.

Copyright © 2026, Los Angeles Times | Terms of Service | Privacy Policy | CA Notice of Collection | Do Not Sell or Share My Personal Information