Alki

Here are two releases:

ONE: Announces the price setting. This seems to be a standard thing and may be best to do before the marketing one. Have we set the price? or the Price range at least?

TWO: This one announces the Crowd Financing campaign.

I think its good to do sepeatarely. The first will get picked up in straight forward financial circles and will provide a base of information and support for the second release which should get picked up in much broader circles.

Let me know what you think and I can discuss with Spencer. He will likely want to tone things down but I've started out with an inspiring quote by you in the second release.
