STERN NOTICE TO ANY PERSON OR INSTITUTION CONSIDERING “DE- RISKING” ACTION AGAINST ME

Any person, bank, regulator, platform, counterparty, media organization, corporation, law firm, intermediary, or public authority considering adverse action against Alkiviades David on the basis of recycled allegations, unverified reporting, coordinated reputational pressure, or contaminated third-party inputs is hereby placed on notice.

Any proposed “de-risking” step — including account closure, denial of service, contract termination, payment blockage, platform restriction, compliance escalation, reputational flagging, internal blacklisting, or business interference — may become part of a live evidential chain in ongoing proceedings and may materially increase exposure for those involved.

If you are considering action, you should first assume the following:

1. The underlying narrative is disputed and under active legal challenge.
2. Reliance on repetition is not verification.
3. Administrative language does not create immunity.
4. Secondary actors can become primary participants when they operationalize damage.

Accordingly, any institution or individual contemplating de-risking action should suspend implementation pending competent internal legal review, preserve all relevant records, identify all decision-makers involved, and ensure that no action is taken on the basis of false, incomplete, coordinated, or legally contaminated material.

Any person who proceeds regardless should understand that the paper trail will matter. If you act, you may be acting into the record.

All records must be preserved immediately. Any deletion or sanitizing will constitute spoliation and aggravate liability.
