Peter I am still waiting to find out what needs to be done. If you can tell me what you need, I can do it today. I just sent Alki an email requesting his revisions a few minutes ago.

The deck that was attached to the email you responded to was not the most recent, I have attached the most updated not here (it was just revised last night). Note, this one does not have financial information.

Let me know what I can do to help.

Thanks!

appreciate the 3 way connect yesterday. it is a good time to explore the synergies and map out the corporate strategy post-FOTV's IPO.

Likewise, Peter. Great catching up with you guys.
Good timing btw. Wrapped up an earlier call with the Mondo team and made it out alive after notifying them of the new IPO timeline. But all good.

Quick note on operations post Mondo buyout:
We're extremely lean with only a 4 man all-star team (including myself) and the process is very streamlined to where we can increase business 15x-20x without needing to add another employee.

Payroll - 3 employees around $15 an hour with great experience in the digital music space. We would need to workout my salary/compensation package post buyout.

Good news is that we'll free up around $250k a year after parting ways with other stakeholders.

Also, happy to come up for the weekly meetings. Let me know when scheduled.

Sanjay, would be great to carve out some time to discuss SEO/online marketing strategies when convenient.

Lastly, (Peter, maybe a question for you or legal) we currently have around $400 to $500k unclaimed royalties (give or take) accumulated overtime since 2012. We've made every effort to contact artists via email blasts, individual emails and phone calls (if number was provided) to no avail. Could be due to a number of reasons as bands breakup, artists go to school, get married, forget accounts, etc. This is also very common in music publishing/royalties as every year billions of dollars are left unclaimed.. These numbers will eventually hit millions for us, given that we've now transitioned to an unlimited upload subscription model. Certainly no complaints if we have millions sitting in our royalty accounts but know the protocol on such cases? If never claimed, are the funds legally forfeited after a certain period? We can further discuss next time we meet.

Subject: Re: FilmOn Deck updates

Likewise, Peter. Great catching up with you guys.

Good timing btw. Wrapped up an earlier call with the Mondo team and made it out alive after notifying them of the new IPO timeline. But all good.

Quick note on operations post Mondo buyout:

We're extremely lean with only a 4 man all-star team (including myself) and the process is very streamlined to where we can increase business 15x-20x without needing to add another employee.

Payroll - 3 employees around $15 an hour with great experience in the digital music space. We would need to workout my salary/compensation package post buyout.

Good news is that we'll free up around $250k a year after parting ways with other stakeholders.

Also, happy to come up for the weekly meetings. Let me know when scheduled.

Sanjay, would be great to carve out some time to discuss SEO/online marketing strategies when convenient.

Lastly, (Peter, maybe a question for you or legal) we currently have around $400 to $500k unclaimed royalties (give or take) accumulated overtime since 2012. We've made every effort to contact artists via email blasts, individual emails and phone calls (if number was provided) to no avail. Could be due to a number of reasons as bands breakup, artists go to school, get married, forget accounts, etc. This is also very common in music publishing/royalties as every year billions of dollars are left unclaimed.. These numbers will eventually hit millions for us, given that we've now transitioned to an unlimited upload subscription model. Certainly no complaints if we have millions sitting in our royalty accounts but know the protocol on such cases? If never claimed, are the funds legally forfeited after a certain period? We can further discuss next time we meet.
